LICENSED NURSING ASSISTANT (LNA)

Why LNA?

If you're looking to make a difference in someone's life, you might consider becoming a Licensed Nursing Assistant. An LNA is one of the most important roles in a health care team, and they're in high demand. LNA's typically work in nursing homes, hospitals, and provide homecare to patients. Once an LNA has worked for two years in a nursing home, they have the option to take a course (MNA) that allows them to give meds under the supervision of a nurse. Becoming an LNA is a great way to start in the medical field, because it allows you to complete the course within a short timeframe, and is a great way to find out if a health career is for you.
